RESULT OF THE SPANISH ELECTIONS.

The French Blue Book for the Year 1868.

AFFAIRS IN THE EAST.

The Hamburg steamship Cimbria, Captain B. H. Haack, and the Cunard steamship Russia, Captain Connelley, arrived at this port yesterday afternoon, with despatches and details of telegrams up to the 24th ult.

The government of Württemberg has ordered that the three class carriages on the various railways in the country shall be warmed in winter as well as the others.

The Bulgarians are addressing a petition to the Emperor of France praying for the emancipation of the Christians in Bulgaria.

Accounts from the Russian frontiers bring lamentable reports of the sufferings of the Jewish population from hunger and typhus. In fact, unless early assistance is rendered, it is feared that entire communities will perish.

The Russian government is organizing bands of Bulgarians and Greeks, armed with rifles of recent construction, who are to take the field against Turkey on the first signal being given.

The Registrar General's returns of London show that no less than 2,453 deaths were registered in London last year from typhus fever, being an increase of 309 as compared with the number recorded in 1867.

Mr. Jefferson Davis, accompanied by Mr. Sidel and two other officers of the rebel army of the South, went on the 18th of January to visit the military school of St. Cyr. He was received in state by the authorities and the pupils manœuvred before him.

The Marquis de Sarda Bandiera announced officially in the sitting of the Portuguese Cortes of the 23d ultimo that the King had empowered the Ministers to remain in office. He added that the Council of State had determined to dissolve the Chambers immediately.

The North German Confederation, it is said, will conclude treaties with Bavaria and Württemberg similar to that of Baden, with the object of enabling subjects of North and South Germany to go through their military services in the armies of either North or South German countries.

It is announced that the journalists of that city have, at the suggestion of the celebrated writer, Herr Bernhard Auerbach, adopted a resolution to be sent to General Grant, begging him to bring in a bill for the protection of literary and artistic copyright between Germany and the United States.

It is said that Monsignor Franchi, the Spanish Papal Nuncio, has written to Cardinal Antonelli the welcome intelligence that the Spanish government has decided to continue paying to the Holy See the usual contribution of 18,000 duros per annum, nominally for the Basilica of St. Peter, and to pay the arrears of the last six months, which had been hitherto suspended.

The Levant Herald says that the Porte has purchased the two iron-clad corvettes built for the Chilean government—but rejected for alleged non-compliance with the contract—at Bordeaux. The Greek government was also negotiating for these vessels, but has, presumably, been outbid.

The arrival in Paris of M. Voloudaki, President of the provisional government of Crete, and of M. Cassiani, advocate of Syria, is announced. "They are going to the United States," says the Liberty, "to negotiate a loan and the purchase of plated vessels."

The Official Gazette of Stuttgart denies the report that Württemberg has made proposals to the North German Confederation for allowing Württemberg subjects to serve in the army of the Confederation and subjects of the Confederation to serve in the Württemberg army.

The Levant Times announces that the Porte has recently abolished a number of taxes "which pressed heavily upon the population in the provinces without any profit to the imperial treasury."

The leaders of the bands which invaded Bulgaria last summer have just been brought to trial and sentenced to six months' imprisonment. This judgment has greatly discouraged their partisans in Bucharest, but, on the other hand, it has restored confidence to all men of order.

The Paris correspondent of the London Herald says that the French Emperor has bought a chateau near Orleans, to convert it into an asylum for convalescent workmen.

The Nord points out the somewhat singular fact that throughout the French Blue Book no allusion is made to Germany. The German press will conclude from this that the French government has ceased to believe that it is interested in the successive development of the national enterprise undertaken since 1866, and will henceforth consider that development exclusively of German concern.

The budget of the Russian Empire for 1869 amounts to 499,000,000 roubles. In the revenue account figure a surplus of 4,000,000 from the budget of 1868, and a surplus of 10,000,000 from the budget of 1869, 10,000,000 in the expenditure. Thirty-one million roubles are appropriated from special sources for the construction of railway lines and for harbor works at Riga and Odessa. The Minister of Finance ascribes the increase in the revenue to a more than usually satisfactory harvest and to the stimulus given to commerce by the extension of the railway system.

The International, of London, mentions that it has good reason to assert that, besides the usual commitments of the season, there passed between Count de Stackelberg and Mr. Rangaia, on the event of the new year's day (Russian calendar), a conversation of great political importance. Mr. Rangaia is said to have explained on that occasion the real motives of his absence from the Conference, from which it would appear that he did not take part in the meeting in order to avoid hearing an opinion that would condemn the conduct that has been observed by Greece lately.

SPAIN.

The Elections and their Peaceful Termination—The Elected Candidates—Consequences of the Late Revolutions—Success of the Republican Party—Mourningful Disposition of the Military.

MADRID, Jan. 26, 1869.

Greatly to the surprise of all and probably to the disappointment of many, especially of those living in la belle France, the great and important elections for the Constitutional Assembly of Spain passed off with perfect order. Of course, in some of the provinces, where the number of 11,000, there were slight trouble, but they really amounted to nothing—not half so serious as a New York election row or a Philadelphia conflict. All this is very creditable to a nation when it exercises its right of suffrage for the first time, and at a period when party spirit runs very high and certain classes are deeply incensed at the duplicity and barbarity of the government. But we hear of no startling outbreaks even where the contest of Bourbon sympathies are strongest, although at several points there were rather formidable demonstrations of men and reactionists, as some of the journals tell us; but nothing of importance came of them except the election of a baker's dozen of abolitionists, who are, perhaps, needed in the new Assembly to give it flavor and piquancy. The people behaved exceedingly well, and they have shown to Europe that they can take one step in an orderly way towards governing themselves. As was naturally expected, a majority of the ministerial candidates have been returned, and they will be able to control the House. All the present provisions of government have been elected as deputies, and all of them from different districts, as it is not necessary for a candidate to live in the district in which he is to be voted for.

With incomplete returns, we find that Señor Don Francisco Alcala Galiano, Minister of the Interior, and brother of the electoral law under which the elections were held, and the liberal who struck from the lists and disqualified over six hundred thousand young men by fixing the legal age at twenty-five, has been returned from five different districts, and it is just too impossible to say in how many others he was winning and failed to obtain a majority. It may be safely asserted that he took very good care to run in the old blighted regions, where men of his transcendental genius are in high repute. Nicholas Maria Rivero, a democrat, but in with the government, and pressed first Alcalá de Madrid, has been returned in five districts. He led the government ticket in Madrid and is by all odds not only the ablest man in the country, but the first man in Spain.
